The following is the latest story we have see illustrative of the sagacity of the feline race: Mr. Tiedemann, the inmous Saxon dentist, had a valuable tortoise-shell cat, that for days I'd nothing else but moun. Guessing the cause, he looked into its mouth, and seeing a decay of tooth, soon relieved it of its pain. The following day there were at least ten cats at his door-the day after, twenty; and they went on increasing at such a rate that he was obliged to keep a bull dog to drive them away. But nothing would help them. A cat who had the toothache would come any number of miles to him. It would come down the chimney, even, and not leave the room till he had taken its tooth out. It graw such a misance at last that he was never free from one of these feline patients. However, being one morning very nervous, he accidentally broke the jaw of an old tubby. The news of this spread like wildfire. Not a single cut ever came to him
